Toys have existed for thousands of years. They were made out all kinds of materials. The materials toys are made from helps us to know how old the toy is.

When your parents and grandparents were young, children played outside a lot of the time. They made up games, climbed trees, played sports and ran about. There are lots of similarities between the toys you play with now and toys from the past.

How is my favourite toy different to my parent's toy?
